

ASK PUPPYCAT #1

Written by

Patrick Alexander

Kasukata B103
Suzumenomiya 4-2-23
Utsunomiya-shi
Tochigi-ken 321-0132
JAPAN

011 81 90 6542 0572 (calling from USA)

panic@chickennation.com

FADE IN:

TITLE CARD: ASK PUPPYCAT!

INT. BEE'S APARTMENT - LIVING ROOM - DAY

PUPPYCAT sits on the couch with an open laptop. He wears reading glasses.

PUPPYCAT
Today's supplicant is
'hippospankr_92'.

ONSCREEN TEXT w/ Puppypcat V.O. (Puppypcat uses a cute but somewhat regal-looking service called 'Courtholdr' to manage his emails and messages.)

PUPPYCAT (V.O.)
(reading)
"I have a friend who's completely tone deaf but loves to sing...
usually when I'm trapped in a car with her! Would it be unkind to ask her to stop?"

Puppypcat removes his glasses and addresses the CAMERA.

PUPPYCAT
How absurd life is, when the merry
singing of friends brings us pain.
Be unkind if you like, hippospankr.
It doesn't matter. But if you want to be kind, simply stop the car and eject your friend onto the roadside. Don't mention her voice problem! Just tell her, "I have no further need of this friendship," and drive away. But if your friend is the driver, try an even kinder solution. When she sings, sing along, and sing worse. Smile, clap, boogie to the music, and howl like the devil's own fist is squeezing life from your heart. She will probably stop singing out of embarrassment or fear. Although, there's a chance she may simply stop the car and eject you onto the roadside.

Puppypcat shrugs.

(CONTINUED)

CONTINUED:

2.

ONSCREEN TEXT: "Do you have a question for Puppycat? Leave it in the comments and cross your unworthy fingers!"

FADE TO BLACK.